MINISTERS VOTE AGAINST NEW BILL

County Association Passes Resolution Asking Mr. Brodbeck to Oppose Measure Barring Certain Publications from Mails.

Unusual importance attached to the meeting of the Adams County Ministerial Association in St. James Chapel this morning through motions passed expressing the attitude of the organization toward pending legislation in Congress.

The meeting was attended by ministers from a number of the county towns and several matters were brought up for discussion. One of these was a resolution asking Congressman Brodbeck to vote against the bill now in Congress which would give the Postmaster General power to exclude from the mails any publication "represented to be a reflection on any form of religious worship practiced or held sacred by any citizens of the United States". The resolution was passed and will be forwarded to Mr. Brodbeck.

At a previous meeting of the association a resolution was adopted asking Mr. Brodbeck to vote for the Sheppard-Hobson National Prohibition Amendment bill. Since then Mr. Brodbeck communicated with the secretary of the association stating that he had voted in the way indicated and this morning a resolution of thanks was passed which will also be sent to him.

Rev. C. W. Baker, of New Oxford, read a paper on "The Parable of the Unjust Steward" and brought out a new interpretation which was received with a great deal of satisfaction by the members present.

After adjournment the members attending the session took dinner at Spangler's Restaurant. The next meeting is scheduled for the first Monday in March. The place has not been announced.

Mrs. C. Irvin Blair Stricken Suddenly while Retiring at her Home at Bendersville Station Sunday Night. Other Deaths.

MRS. C. IRVIN BLAIR

On the eve of her twenty second wedding anniversary Mrs. C. Irvin Blair, was taken suddenly ill with a form of heart trouble at her home in Aspers Sunday night and died before a physician could be summoned. Her death occurred at half past ten o'clock. She was aged 62 years, 7 months, and 13 days.

Mrs. Blair had been subject to attacks of heart trouble, the last one occurring about two weeks ago. She was in the act of retiring Sunday night when she was again stricken. A physician was at once summoned but death occurred in ten minutes and life was extinct when he arrived.

Cynthia A. Rex was born on June 24, 1862 at Bendersville, a daughter of George W. and Sarah P. Rex. Her marriage to C. Irvin Blair took place on February 8, 1893. They had no children. TOOK SUBSCRIPTIONS

Young Man Operated in Gettysburg under Alleged Misrepresentation.

A man who gave the name of M. E. Bergendahl and his address as 256 Potomac avenue, Hagerstown, took subscriptions for medical journals in town last week on the pretense of working his way through college. Word from the Keystone Circulation Company, which issues one of the publications the young man was supposed to represent, requests that he be turned over to the police. They have no knowledge of him and he evidently was an imposter in connection with his other representations.

OVERLOOKED MONEY

He was traced in the direction of Dillsburg.

DURING the absence of Burgess Raymond from Gettysburg permits can be secured at the office of Borough Attorney J. Donald Swope who will also attend to other local matters which would naturally be brought before the Burgess.—advertisement 1

NOT SO KEEN FOR ORGANIZED BALL

Some Opposition to Getting a Charter from the National Commission. Claim it would Hurt Chances for College Players.

Now that the enthusiasm of the get-together meeting at Hagerstown last week has died down, the base ball fans in the various cities and towns of the proposed Five Team League are beginning to wonder whether they did a wise thing in deciding on getting a charter from the National Commission.

Major D. John Markey, one of the most active fans in Frederick, says that it will mean more expense than otherwise would be necessary. In discussing the matter he said:

"Last year the managers were not tied down by the laws of a National commission, being able to sign college men at comparatively low salaries. These college men were just as good players as some of those in the big leagues, but they didn't jump to the majors because they wanted to return to college ball the following season. You will soon see a number of college men who played in the Tri-City League last season will be wearing big league uniforms. Of course, if we adopt organized ball, we will not be able to sign any college men, for they can not play on their respective college aggregations if ever they enter this kind of ball."

"Then I believe organized ball will render it necessary to raise our salary limit, for players signed with leagues certainly have a large field in which to find employment. But then, I understand, those in favor of the project, claim that the selling of a single player by each club will bring in receipts sufficient to meet the added expense of salaries. They must first realize that base ball is not now a paying proposition and there probably will not be so many pick-ups from the minors this season. The lowest that can be paid for a player under Class D ball, I believe, is $300 and you will find a very few amounts will exceed this."

Mr. Boyer explained at the banquet that organized ball would afford absolute protection and while this was afforded to some degree last season by a mutual agreement between all clubs, the unexpected sometimes happens. The cost is a trifle to receive the charter. He further explained that with five clubs in the circuit, the majors would keep a good eye on the players in this section.

Major Markey is not entirely correct in his views about college players, for many of them play in organized ball during the summer and on the school teams during the coming spring.

WON FROM LEHIGH

Fast Basket Ball Seen on Local Floor Saturday Night.

Gettysburg added another to its string of basket ball victories Saturday evening when Lehigh went down to defeat 45 to 22. The first fifteen minutes of the game was the best basket ball seen here for many months, the locals passing and shooting with remarkable accuracy. The pace became slower as the game progressed but Lehigh was at no time dangerous.

This week the Gettysburg team goes away for a three night trip, playing Albright, Muhlenberg and Lafayette. The next home game is with Franklin and Marshall on February 16.

WOULD INCREASE WHEAT ACREAGE

Spring Wheat to be Planted in Southern Counties of the State as soon as Weather will Permit, Says Department of Agriculture.

Officials connected with the state department of agriculture declare that a large acreage of spring wheat will be sown in Pennsylvania this year than known for decades. This is attributed to the high prices of wheat and to the prospects that there will be a big demand during the late summer and early fall. Practically all of the wheat sown in Pennsylvania in the last dozen years has been winter wheat. But little spring wheat has been raised.

The acreage sown with winter wheat now is probably larger than ever known in the state and the crop report of the bureau of statistics of the state department of agriculture is to the effect that at the end of the year the condition was 96 per cent. as compared with an average and that a notable improvement has been noticed since November. This is due to the heavy fall rains and the fact that in many parts of the state snow has covered the ground since the cold weather set in during December. Sowing of spring wheat will be started in the southern counties as soon as the ground can be prepared and efforts to raise a big crop will be made. This wheat should be ready for cutting not very many weeks after the winter wheat is cut.

Preliminary reports also show that there will be a large acreage in corn and that there is a demand for it which may result in cutting down of the amount which might be fed on the farms producing it during the winter. The 1914 crop of corn was exceptionally fine.

Owing to the depleted state of the appropriation of the state police force for the service at Gettysburg at the time of the big reunion and the strike service at Erie and other places, only five sub-stations are being operated by the department and requests from district attorneys and other officials for policemen cannot be filled. At the office of the police it was stated that ordinarily there are 30 sub-stations in the state instead of the five which are now on the list. The men in these five are co-operating with game and fish wardens and doing general patrol work.

The sub-stations were practically all abolished late last summer when it was found that funds were running low and the men of Major Groom's force have been compelled to do most of their patrolling within a day's distance of the barracks. It was stated at the office that the prospects were that no sub-stations will be sent out this year until the regular legislative appropriation is made available in June.

BRITISH UPHOLD USE OF U. S. FLAG

Declare Lusitania Did Not Violate International Law.

IS A STRATEGIC PRACTICE

Official Statement Calls Germany's Threat Piracy and Justifies Measures to Safeguard Passengers' Lives.

London, Feb. 8.—Prevailing British opinion, and, as can be stated on good authority, the official view of the flying of the United States flag by the Lusitania in passing through the Irish sea is that Captain Dow was entirely justified in his act.

Great Britain has always recognized the rights of other nations to fly the British flag for purposes of escaping capture, as shown in the merchant shipping act of 1894, and in instructions which have been issued to British consuls.

This substitution, it is held, only insures that the attacking craft shall observe the ordinary obligations of sea fighting by establishing the identity of a merchant ship attacked and safeguarding the lives of the crew and passengers. Furthermore, it is pointed out in London, the Emden frequently flew other than the German flag before firing the first shot.

The official press bureau gave out a statement made by the British foreign office in reply to the German blockade threat. The statement justifies the use of a neutral flag by merchant ships to escape capture by belligerents under certain limitations. It cites the law on the subject and concludes:

"By the rules of international law, the customs of war and the dictates of humanity, it is obligatory upon a belligerent to ascertain the character of a merchant vessel and its cargo before making a capture. To destroy a ship with its non-combatant crew and cargo, as Germany announced her intention of doing, is an act of piracy."

The Lusitania's passengers, scattered throughout London's hotels, are busy talking about the exciting incidents of the last twenty-four hours of their voyage. Many expressions of gratitude to Captain Dow were heard, both for his seamanship in bringing them through one of the worst storms of the season, and for the way in which he took every precautionary measure in order to safeguard the lives of his passengers from submarine attacks, which many of them believe now to have been imminent.

Lafayette Young, of Des Moines, Iowa, who is on his way to the Continent to visit the war areas, said:

"I do not know what international usages and diplomatic questions Captain Dow had to face when he hoisted the American flag, but I think he did a very wise thing to take every possible step to protect the lives of his hundred of neutral American passengers, and I, as one of these passengers, am grateful to him."

"The genuine composure, in the face of the furious weather and the alarming rumors, of the Lusitania's passengers on this voyage was admirable. Thursday evening, just before we guessed that something out of the way had happened, Miss Elsie Janis and I were in charge of the ship's concert. Despite the fierce storm it was a clear success, and we raised more than $300 for the wives and orphans of the Liverpool sailors who had gone down earlier in the war on the Hogue, Aboukir and Cressy."

HODEIDA INCIDENT ENDS

Turks Free British Consul and Salute Italian Flag.

Rome, Feb. 8.—The Hodeida incident was suddenly and unexpectedly solved on Saturday.

The British consul, who was arrested in November in the Italian consulate, where he had taken refuge, was delivered safe and sound to his Italian colleague, while a detachment of Turkish troops saluted the Italian flag when it was again hoisted over the consulate.

The British consul afterwards sailed on the British auxiliary cruiser Empress of Asia, and it is officially announced in Rome that the Italian consul has resumed cordial relations with the local authorities.

VON BETHMANN-HOLLWEG

German Chancellor Says Neutrals Must Take Consequences.

"England treats the United States as a besieged fortress," declared Dr. Theobald von Bethmann-Hollweg, the imperial chancellor of Germany, in discussing with a Danish correspondent Great Britain's attempts to prevent imports of food into Germany. "Winston Churchill," continued the chancellor, "wants to starve a people, numbering 70,000,000, in this barbarian fashion. Against this effort Germany will use every opportunity to take revenge."

"With regard to the complaint that we are injuring neutral interests, neutral powers have not protested against England's action, and they must take the consequences. We certainly are not going to die of famine."

THE JAPANESE THREATEN CHINA

Young Republic Likely to Yield Without War.

Peking, China, Feb. 8.—Military action to enforce its demands on China has been threatened by the Japanese government, according to a cable message from the Chinese minister at Tokio.

It is believed in official circles in Peking, however, that the communication should not be taken too seriously.

Both public men and newspapers are urging President Yuan Shi Kai to let Japan seize by force what she wishes, as China would be unable to oppose her, but refuse to grant any humiliating concessions.

It is reported that President Yuan Shi Kai intends to meet some of the demands, granting Japan such concessions as would be given to any other country, but stubbornly resist any transgression of China's sovereign rights.

The government is observing Japan's demand that secrecy be maintained in conducting negotiations, as it is desired to give Japan every opportunity of moderating her demands without losing prestige.

Announcement was made at Madrid recently that parliament had authorized the government to purchase four submarines from a builder in the United States.

MACHINE GUNS FOIL GERMAN

British Forces Capture Military Road by Storm.

ARTILLERY DUEL NEAR ARRAS

Allies' Airship Sinks Teuton Submarine at Zeebrugge—The Official Statements.

London, Feb. 8.—Victory has been achieved by the British over the Germans in a sharp engagement near Guiney, northern France.

For weeks the Germans had held a machine gun position in a brick yard, which was of great military value through the fact that it dominated the highway between Bethune and La Bassée.

After preliminary bombardment the British army, in a dashing charge captured the brick yard by assault and drove the Germans to a rear line of trenches.

An attempt by the Germans to resume the aggressive in the Champagne district, north of Beausejour, was easily thwarted by the French, whose rifle fire scattered the advancing invaders.

French forces have gained the advantage in artillery duels near Arras and along the Aisne and as far eastward as Rheims.

Heavy fogs have prevented activity by either army in the Argonne region and in the Vosges mountains.

Braving death from the concentrated fire of the German gunners a British aeroplane has sunk a German submarine moored in the mole at Zeebrugge. There has a terrific explosion on board the submarine, as the British aviator dropped bombs from a height of only 300 feet. The submarine sank within a few minutes and the aviator escaped injury.

The following statement was issued by the Paris war office:

"Between the canal of La Bassée and the high road running from Bethune to La Bassée, one kilometer east of Guiney, a brick factory, where the enemy has held his position until now, was captured by the English. In the sector of Arras, north of Ecuria, German batteries bombarded a trench captured by us on Feb. 4, but they made no infantry attack."

"From Arras to Rheims there was artillery fighting in which we had the advantage."

"In Champagne we repulsed an attack made by half a battalion to the north of Beausejour."

"From the Argonne to the Vosges there has been artillery fighting, hindered somewhat in the mountainous region by a heavy fog."

The German army headquarters in Berlin says:

"Southeast of Ypres we have taken a French trench and two English machine guns."

"South of the canal of La Bassée the enemy penetrated one of our trenches. The battle is still raging there."

"There were no other incidents of importance in either theater except artillery battles."

Extensive measures for the relief of sufferers in Russian Poland will be administered by the Rockefeller Foundation. It was announced officially.

The work will be carried on by the international central committee, of which the American and Spanish ambassadors to Germany are members.

A PIGEON STORY

Bird With Message From Soldier In Belgium Alights In Wilkes-Barre.

Wilkes-Barre, Pa., Feb. 8.—A carrier pigeon dropped from the roof of a building here with a message tied about the bird's neck, which evidently was from a German soldier in the Belgian trenches to his wife.

The message read as follows: "Dear Wife—I am alive and well in the trenches of Belgium, but your brother has been killed."

The pigeon showed evidences of a long flight, and the injury to the wing seemed to have been received shortly before the bird was picked up. The message was written in English and wrapped in the heading of a German newspaper, and the date mark of the paper was Saxony, December—the day of the month being missing.

ALLENTOWN IS HEALTHY

Grave Digger Commits Suicide Because Work Was Sack.

Allentown, Pa., Feb. 8.—Despondent because work was slack, Francis D. Baer, a grave digger, forty-six years old, committed suicide while his wife and daughter were in church.

He pulled the hose from a gas heater and stuck the end in his mouth with the jet turned on full force.

Baer was a native of Bernville, and a brother-in-law of Lott Rieff, of Oley, one of the Democratic leaders of Berks. He had been complaining that Allentown was so healthy that a grave digger could not make ends meet.

USED BANK'S MONEY TO AID OTHERS

Three Men Profited by Overdrafts of Suicide Cashier.

Lebanon, Pa., Feb. 8.—That Alvin Binner, the suicide cashier of the First National bank at Schaefferstown, Lebanon county, was not a thief, but violated his obligations to the bank to benefit others, and that he committed suicide upon an impulse of the moment rather than after any premeditation, were the developments in the case.

Before he pressed the revolver to his cheek on Saturday he hurriedly scribbled a note to his wife and placed it in the cellar entry of a fine new home he recently built and into which he expected to move in a few weeks. The missive said in part:

"My Dear Laura and Children—I am wrong in my bank accounts. I do not have a cent of the bank's money, but am caught by * * * I am sorry, but could not tell you. I am sorry for the disgrace, but must go. Good-bye to all."

The investigation at the bank has not been completed by United States Bank Examiner J. M. Logan, but Uriah B. Horst, president, intimated that disclosures at the bank corroborate Binner's note, the accounts of three men showing extensive overdrafts which had been made without the knowledge of the directors.

The directors still maintain secrecy as to the amount of the shortage, but that it is at least $15,000 seems certain, for President Horst would not state whether the bank will be able to open or not. He did state, however, that the directors will make good and that the bank will be open without liquidation proceedings.

SEEK HAVEN FOR INSANE BELGIAN

Here's Real Case of "Man Without a Country."

AUTHORITIES IN QUANDARY.

Mad From Plight of Homeland and His Capture by Germans, He May Be Doomed to Wander Until War Is Over—Belgian Consul Says His Hands Are Tied.

On Ellis island, New York, the immigration authorities are taking care of a man without a country. They don't want to keep him longer than they can help, even though a fee of $1.50 a day has been paid for his maintenance since his arrival in this country on Nov. 27. If the government has its way he will be sent to Brazil on Feb. 10 on the steamship Stephen.

The man without a country is John Joseph Bordul, a Belgian, forty-nine years old, who was a sailor on the Lamport & Holt liner Vandeyck, which was captured by the German cruiser Karlsruhe off the Brazilian coast on Oct. 26.

He signed on at this port on Sept. 3, sailing on the Vandeyck on her last journey to the south. Bordul worried much over the plight of his country and made unsuccessful efforts to get home. He was a sailorman by trade and hoped that by the time he had made the round trip on the Vandeyck conditions would have changed sufficiently to permit him to enter his native land. On the journey north, however, the Vandeyck fell into the hands of the Germans, and Bordul, with the captured vessel's passengers and crew, was taken to Para, Brazil by one of the cruiser's scout vessels.

At the expense of the Lamport & Holt line Bordul and the crew and passengers were kept at a hotel in Para. Later their passage was paid on the Booth steamship Stephen, which landed them in New York on Nov. 27.

Worry Causes Insanity.

Worry over the destruction of his country, augmented by his capture on the Vandeyck, caused Bordul to lose his mind. He was taken to Ellis island, pronounced insane and ordered deported to Para, which the immigration officials called the "port of origin."

According to the contention of the Lamport & Holt line, the insane man was not actually brought here from Para. His brief sojourn there was an accident. He was as a shipwrecked sailor cast upon the Brazilian coast. He would not have been sent north from that port had not the Karlsruhe incident forced him against his will to be taken to Para. As the same view of the case has been taken by the Brazilian consulate, objection has been made to the proposal of the government to send him there. The Brazilian authorities have declared that they will not permit Bordul to land, and his deportation will amount to nothing more than a round trip to Para, after which he may again be taken to Ellis island.

Representatives of the Lamport & Holt line have offered to pay for the man's keep at Ellis island until the war in Europe is over. He cannot go back to Belgium, as that nation is now in the hands of Germany and the allies. The local Belgian consul maintains that there is no government of Belgium now in existence and that he cannot send back his unfortunate countryman.

If the government should deport Bordul on the Stephen on Feb. 10 he will become a permanent passenger on that vessel until the Belgian government is restored.

"TIPPERARY" OVER PHONE.

Solo in New York Heard in San Francisco.

It's a long way to San Francisco, it's a long way to go. But Arthur D. Geissler, vice president of a New York talking machine company, made the first experiment of sending musical sounds over the new long distance telephone wires between New York and San Francisco.

"It's a Long Way to Tipperary" was the record used for the test. Mr. Geissler was on the local end of the wire and Mrs. George A. Moore, Mr. Geissler's mother-in-law, living in Ross Valley, a suburb of San Francisco, was at the coast end. Connections were maintained for about ten minutes, during which time the record was run off. Every note of the song was clearly heard by Mrs. Moore, she declared. The cost of the solo was at the rate of $20 for the first three minutes and $3 additional for each additional minute.

IRON CROSS SAVES LIFE.

Was Shield Against Foe's Shell, German Paper Says.

That the iron cross is not merely decorative is illustrated in the Berliner Tages Zeitung, which says:

"In a recent artillery action in the Argonne a lieutenant ventured near the enemy's lines and was struck by a splinter from a shell. He was lacerated about the chest and body, but his iron cross, though demolished, saved his life.

"The Kaiser caused another iron cross to be sent to the fortunate officer, and, in addition, the red eagle, for his bravery in reconnoitering within the fire of the hostile lines."

If you will try holding the lemons in hot water a few minutes before cutting, for making lemonade, they will yield double the juice they would otherwise.

Children of the Dead

[Five hundred and fifty orphan children, mostly babies and all nameless, were brought here this afternoon from the quack area.—Cable Dispatch From Rome.]

Gone are the hearts that bore them, Gone with the dead and missed. Lost are the hands which soothed them, Still are the lips that kissed. Silenced the songs which lulled them, Sweet at the close of day. Oh, for the angel mothers So far, so far away!

Who is to plan their future? Who is to teach them games? Who is to answer questions? Who is to give them names? Where winds the path tomorrow? Where runs the road next year? Who is to guide their footsteps Up through the hills from Here? —H. S. Haskins in New York Sun.

WIRELESS PHONE OVER SEA SOON A REALITY.

Peter Cooper Hewitt Now Perfecting Invention—Tests Successful.

Wireless telephoning across the Atlantic ocean is possible, according to Peter Cooper Hewitt, whose invention made possible the three relay stations which have been utilized by the American Bell Telephone company in talking directly from New York to San Francisco. Mr. Hewitt is now working on an oscillator which he believes will obviate all difficulties heretofore experienced in using wireless for telephoning.

His oscillator has already proved practicable for short distances. He has talked several times to persons at Columbia university, New York, four and a half miles from his experimental laboratory on the roof of Madison Square Garden, with perfect results. The problem that remains is to strengthen the oscillator to carry sufficient voltage to transmit messages long distances, and this is a matter that will take but a few months, Mr. Hewitt believes.

"Within ten years I predict that every ship will carry wireless telephones, and the wireless will be used entirely in talking over long distances. I don't think it will ever prove a substitute for the regulation telephone in the congested districts. In time, though, practically every farmer will have his wireless telephone, and other persons living in lonely districts will have this easy method of keeping in touch with civilization."

The invention upon which Mr. Hewitt's hopes are founded is a gas and vapor device, which removes all the present defects of the wireless and makes the service stable and highly efficient at all times.

WHITE CLAY FOR CHOLERA.

German's Remedy Suggested For Russian Prisoners.

In view of the discovery of symptoms resembling those of Asiatic cholera in the concentration camp in which 2,800 prisoners of war are confined at Ulm, in Germany, where four Russians died and eleven sickened, various measures have been taken, according to the Frankfurter Zeitung, to prevent a spread of the disease.

One of the most striking measures, which is discussed in several German newspapers, is the remedy advocated by Professor Stumpf of Wurzburg and Professor Graeser of Naples, which consists of feeding the cholera patients simply white clay in porridge form.

In an article describing experiments carried on with this method Professor Graeser says that the effect of this "white clay porridge" is not only remedial, but very swift, and that common sense should convince all who have witnessed its good results that it is better far than "poison and disinfectant pills," which have impressed the lay mind as of greater importance.

Nursing infants, he says, receive thirty grams of white clay powder (bolus alba) in seventy to 100 grams in their nursing bottles; older children get twice as much in 120 grams of water every three hours. The results are usually manifest in twenty-four hours, the patients reviving and craving food and the latest intestinal disturbances being eliminated. For eighteen hours, however, great care must be taken not to give the patient anything to eat nor any drink other than water.

WON'T SCHOOL BE POPULAR!

Nutley (N. J.) Man Wants a Modern Dance Course Introduced.

Had a 42 centimeter shell exploded in the meeting room of the Nutley (N. J.) board of education it would hardly have caused a greater shock than did the suggestion of William J. Kinsley, a board member, that a modern dance course be added to the high school curriculum.

"This is not a joke," said Mr. Kinsley. "I am most serious about it. The matter has been called to my attention a number of times by the students. The modern dances are graceful and of mental and physical benefit. The course could be furnished the school for the remainder of the year for $75."

The question was sent to the teachers' committee.

Many Relatives in War.

A German living in St. Louis has twenty-three nephews in the Kaiser's army, three of whom have been decorated with the iron cross for bravery. Two have been wounded in action. A French senator has given his three sons for France. One was killed in Alsace, another storming breastworks on the Aisne and another in Africa.

California is one of the richest states of the Union in game. The varieties include deer, elk, moose, antelope, caribou, wild turkey, pheasant, duck, goose, brant, plover, snipe and rail.

JANIN THE "BUG" A REAL INVENTOR

Obscure Cabinetmaker Made Hydroaeroplane Possible.

SEES BIG FORTUNE IN SIGHT

"Dreamer" Worked Fifteen Years on Device For Which He Gets Patent. Dazed Over Good Luck as Fellow Workers Surround and Congratulate Him on Notable Triumph.

Albert S. Janin, cabinetmaker, a few days ago took off his apron in the shop in which he has worked eight hours a day for the last fourteen years at Rosebank, N. Y., walked up to the foreman and resigned his job.

He didn't quit in a huff—a fact that was plainly attested by the manner in which the foreman wrung his hand and his fellow workmen crowded around him, their faces beaming.

"Congratulations, Al," said the foreman simply. From somewhere in the crowd spoke one of Janin's intimates: "The 'Bug' has made good. Whadaya know about that?"

"Well," rejoined Janin good naturedly, "it no longer will be Janin the cabinetmaker or Janin the Bug, the dreamer and the impostor. I guess the handle to my name has been pretty firmly established as Janin, inventor of the hydroaeroplane."

And that night the modest little five room Janin flat at 78 Clifton avenue, overlooking the broad sweep of New York's bay, was the scene of a celebration the like of which has never been seen at Rosebank. Most enthusiastic of the guests were men who by the last ten years have scoffed at the strange looking winged craft in the Janin back yard, which the poor carpenter persisted, would some day be recognized by the patent office as the first flying boat.

Rosebank went on the map to stay when word was received from Washington that the board of examiners in chief of the patent office had decided unanimously that the man who made the hydroaeroplane possible was Albert S. Janin, the poor cabinetmaker of Staten Island. For four years powerful interests had fought the claims of the obscure and almost penniless carpenter through the patent office and to its highest court—the board of examiners in chief.

Dazed Over Good Luck.

Just how it feels for success for a struggling workman, whose $5 a day is barely enough to provide the necessities of life for a wife and seven children, to suddenly find himself famous and a fortune within his grasp Janin tried to explain. He is still a little dazed over his good luck, and in his hour of triumph thinks only of the good things in store for his wife and the now bright futures of the seven little Janins, blond haired youngsters ranging from three to fourteen years of age.

"We put it over, didn't we, mother?" Janin beamed, affectionately patting his wife. "If it hadn't been that she stuck to me—believed in me when all the rest were poking fun and scoffing—I never would have made it."

"And if it hadn't been," Mrs. Janin interrupted, "that after your hard day's work for almost every night in the last ten or fifteen years you burned the oil at your work bench until long after midnight, you never would have made it."

"The best part of this invention is that, unlike a whole lot of others, it's going to bring us money—gobs of it," Janin broke in. "For years we have felt the pinch of poverty, but I guess that day is passed. You know the decision of the patent office gives me a royalty on every hydroaeroplane turned out in this country dating from the day a few weeks hence my patent is printed and issued by the government. I am told that the royalty can be fixed arbitrarily by the inventor. The failure of any of these companies building hydroaeroplanes to come to terms, of course, would be followed by an infringement suit, but we don't expect any such difficulty."

"What will I do with the money? The first thing will be to get a home of our own with plenty of ground around it for the kids to play. No more of these flats for us. But we are going to stay right here in Rosebank, where my wife and I were born and brought up. You know we were sweethearts, even at old P. S. No. 13, around the corner. Most of the kids are now going to that same school. The oldest girl, Antoinette, who is now fourteen, can realize her ambition to go to the normal school and take up teaching if she wants to, but she don't have to now."

Snakes in South Africa fear the secretary bird and will even crawl away from his shadow. This bird devours snakes and can easily kill a reptile twice its size.

TEUTON ALLIES FALLING BACK

Russians Drive Foe Toward Interior of Hungary.

CRISIS BEFORE WARSAW

Germans Are Meeting Terrific Assaults and Fighting Desperately to Save Their Front.

Petrograd, Feb. 8.—A battle of great ferocity and on a huge scale is raging in the Carpathians, with the Russians driving the Austro-German forces toward the plains of Hungary.

The czar's forces have succeeded in halting the great aggressive campaign of the Teutonic allies and in turn have gained important advantages by splendidly organized counter attacks. In the most recent fighting the Russians captured 2000 prisoners.

Attacks by the Germans in the upper Vistula region have been broken down by the effective resistance of the Russians.

Battling desperately to save their front before Warsaw from being crumpled up and hurled back, the Germans are meeting terrific assaults on a line thirty miles west of Warsaw, the czar's army at that point having crossed the Hawka river, according to reports from the front.

The Kaiser is said to be on his way to Russian Poland, where the most momentous events of the present campaign are being fought out on a scale scarcely equalled since the beginning of the war.

With the battle still raging the fate of the German army hangs in the balance, military experts being inclined to believe it will be rolled back to the Silesian frontier. The battle of Borjow-Goumme has ended with the Kaiser's forces beaten and their hopes of reaching Warsaw practically ended, as far as the present campaign is concerned.

That the German front west of Warsaw has been penetrated by a Russian force is reported from the front. The Russians gained this success, it is said, after driving the invaders from the left bank of the Bzura.

All eyes are turned toward the struggle in Poland, upon the result of which depends further efforts of the Germans in that region about Warsaw. The Russians have assumed the offensive there, and, after crossing the Bzura, are driving the troops of Field Marshal von Hindenburg from their fortified positions at Kamion.

A new flanking movement by the Russians against the German left is developing, with the result that the center of the invaders is in danger. Military critics, however, assert that the recent German attacks along the Vistula are part of a new great offensive movement.

It is reported that relations between Rumania and Austro-Hungary are greatly strained. Details of the exact situation are lacking.

MINE BLOW-UP KILLS 20

Pocket of Gas Ignited by Miner's Open Light in West Virginia.

Fayetteville, W. Va., Feb. 8.—Twenty miners were killed and 160 escaped death in an explosion in the Carlisle mine of the New River Coal company. That so many men escaped after being entombed was due to the fact that the cage and shaft were not damaged. While many were brought out by the cage, some managed to climb out through the air shafts.

Four men were rescued by searching parties, who penetrated the mine soon after the explosion, which is believed to have been due to the ignition of a pocket of gas from a miner's lamp. One of the rescued men, suffering from burns, was sent to a hospital.

Six bodies, none of which has been identified, were found near where the explosion occurred, by the first rescue party to descend. Later a more extended search of the mine, following the clearing away of debris, led to the finding of fourteen more bodies. All had been killed by after damp while at work.

State mine inspectors, who took charge of the mine, learned that 180 men had gone into the workings. All the victims were of foreign birth or negroes.

Hay Fever Cured by Plants Causing It

New York, Feb. 8.—The cure of suffering from hay fever by the injection of the plant pollen responsible for the ailment in the individual cases is announced in a preliminary report published in the New York Medical Journal by Drs. Seymour Oppenheimer and Mark J. Gottlieb, of this city. The announcement is based on the result of laboratory experiments at the College of Physicians and Surgeons and the treatment of patients.

Ends Life as Wife Pleads

Philadelphia, Feb. 8.—While his wife and mother-in-law were trying to force their way into his home, Oliver H. Davies, twenty-one years old, called from a window to his wife, asking her to listen to "a funny noise." Despite his wife's pleas he shot himself in the head, dying almost instantly. Failure to obtain work is said to be the cause of the suicide.

STILL SUSPECT SPIES

Believe Water Main That Closed the Bethlehem Plant Was Dynamited. South Bethlehem, Pa., Feb. 8.—While it is perhaps wrong to discredit the official statement of the Bethlehem Steel company that the break in its big water main, which resulted in the closing of the works on Thursday was an accident caused by tricking water undermining the pipe, rumors will not down that the big pipe was blown up by German spies.

Picked men repaired the damage in an incredibly short time, or at any rate re-established the water connection, although one of the bosses on the job says it took twelve hours, instead of three hours named in the official statement.

The rumor that it was a malicious attempt to wreck the works were revived by the declaration of an expert who said that men who knew about explosives believed the pipe had been broken by the use of dynamite. This man is known as one who has had much experience with the treatment of broken mains.

HIS LOVE SPURNED; ENDS LIFE BY POISON

R. G. Daniels Dies in Scranton After Taking Drug.

Scranton, Pa., Feb. 8.—Robert G. Daniels, twenty-six years old, an athlete, is dead here from bichloride of mercury poisoning, taken in New York more than a week ago.

The young man took the poison, following the refusal of Miss Ethel M. Jones, a choir singer in Brooklyn, to marry him. Efforts of the physicians in the State hospital to save his life were futile.

Daniels, who was found groaning in his room at the Grand hotel, had taken the poison while he tramped the streets. When he found himself growing faint with pain he entered the hotel and registered. Time and again he called for ice water, and finally he asked that a physician be sent to him.

A physician was summoned, and to him Daniels confessed that he had taken bichloride of mercury. He said that Miss Jones had repeatedly refused to marry him and that in desperation he had determined to end his life. In his hands he held a picture of the girl.

Emergency remedies were applied, but the young man had taken so great a quantity of the tablets—having eight of them in his mouth when the physician arrived—that no hope for his recovery was held out. His sister hurried to New York and had him taken to Scranton.

Daniels, who was a member of a well known family, had long been an admirer of Miss Jones, and after she left Scranton for Brooklyn last year, he made frequent visits to New York to call on her. She steadfastly refused to marry him.

WANT TO SELL CHILDREN

Man and Wife Plan to Raise Money to Pay Bills.

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 8.—"For sale, two American children, because their father is not an American and cannot get a job to protect them."

This is the sign in big black letters that was nailed to a fence near the Associated Charities building in Detroit.

"Yes, we will sell Emma, eighteen months old, and Jennie, three years old, for $1000 apiece," said Mrs. Andrew P. Yuhass, mother of the children. "We paid $2000 down on a home and still owe $1800, which we wish to pay off, and my husband has been out of work for four months, and he said he would sell the children and pay our bills."

PARTS OF COUNTY DRY

Judge in Bradford Leaves Twenty-one Places "Up in Air."

Towanda, Pa., Feb. 8.—Twenty-one licensed places in Bradford county went out of business at 12 o'clock on Saturday night, owing to the fact that the hearings of remonstrances have not been completed.

Judge Maxwell has not passed on the cases, and the license year ended at midnight. Nine of the eighteen places in Towanda must remain closed until the judge decides.

Troy, the half-sire town, becomes dry, as do Dyalusing and Summerfield, Sayre, Athens, Milan, Burlington, Mosherville and New Albany. It will require at least a week to complete the cases pending.

Ancient King a Terror.

Mithridates, king of Pontus, is rarely mentioned nowadays, but in the year 88 B. C. he was the terror of the world. He killed his own family, slaughtered seven different kings and their courts, marched through Asia and left everywhere trails of dead. He invaded Greece and there slaughtered nearly half a million human beings, then he marched against Rome with awful carnage. In his own army he lost only 85,000 men, but he is thought to have killed at least twenty times that number of his enemies.

Languages of the World.

Strange as it may seem, there are more than four thousand languages spoken by mankind, while the number of dialects exceeds this. There are more than sixty vocabularies in Brazil and in Mexico the Nahuatl is broken up into some seven hundred dialects. There are hundreds in Borneo, while in Australia there is no classifying the complexities. Assuming that 50 dialects on the average belong to each language, we have the colossal total of 250,000 linguistic varieties.

Long Enough Already.

A rather fussy man traveling from New York to Philadelphia had been much annoyed by his opposite companion, a tall, lanky fellow whose many lines troubled him not a little. There was a stop of several minutes at Trenton and the tall traveler rose from his seat, and said with a yawn: "I guess I'll get out and stretch my legs a bit." "Good gracious!" exclaimed the other, "don't do that unless you are prepared to pay double fare, or to take a compartment all to yourself."

and belt are cut in one piece, while the back is stitched to the sides in such a way that it has the effect of an applied panel. Narrow silk braid is used to trim the front and cuffs. The entire costume calls for 3 1/2 yards of 54-inch material. If the coat is lined, 2 yards of 36-inch satin will be needed. Two styles of sleeve may be used—the long, close-fitting coat sleeve illustrated, or three-quarters length, finished in flare effect and plainly hemmed. As the first step in the development of the jacket, join side front and side back as notched. Press open seams carefully, but do not stretch them in the operation. Following the perforations, turn under the edges of the front and back. To the side front baste the front, overlapping the edges so that they can be stitched down closely. Now lap the back to the sides, letting the panel continue below the belt as far as the hips. Close the shoulder seam and sew collar to neck edge as notched. If preferred, satin or a contrasting material may be used for an inlaid collar. This is cut the shape of the regular collar, only a little narrower, then stitched closely down upon the material, so that the edge of the collar supplies the finish. For the plain sleeve, close the seam as notched; then sew up the cuff seam to sleeve and sew sleeve into armhole, easing in the fullness. Sometimes the fullness is shrunken out, but this should be done by a person of experience.

The cuff may be finished to correspond with the collar, or separate cuffs and collar of linen may be worn.

YOUNG FOLKS' CORNER

Legend of the First Rooster.

Mars, the god of war, had a servant named Alectryon, who was a good and faithful youth.

Among his other duties he had to call Mars every morning before the sun was up. Mars had told him never to forget this.

One day Alectryon worked so very hard that he slept soundly all that night and did not wake next morning until the sun was well up in the sky. Then he was awakened by being shaken hard by Mars, who was very angry.

Alectryon jumped up quickly and stood meekly before Mars, who was scolding him hard. The servant did not know what to say or do, and as he stood there in fear he began to feel very queer.

Little feathers began to come out all over his body, his arms were turned into wings, and, to his great surprise, his feet changed into long, sharp claws. He became more frightened at this and, not knowing what to do, threw up his head and tried to call for help.

He found out that all he could say was "Cock-a-doodle-do." From that time on he has never forgotten to tell us of the sunrise, and every time you hear the rooster's first crow in the morning you can think of Alectryon.

Nursery Rhymes Are Ancient.

Did you know that the nursery rhymes were based on facts and date back some as far as the sixteenth century?

"Froggy Would A-wooing Go" appeared in 1650.

"Three Blind Mice" is a music book of 1830.

"Little Jack Horner" before the seventh century.

"Pussycat, Pussycat, Where Have You Been?" dates from the reign of Queen Elizabeth.

"Boys and Girls Come Out to Play" comes to us from the reign of Charles II., as also does "Lucy Locket lost her pocket."

"Old Mother Hubbard," "Goosey, Goosey Gander" and "Old Mother Goose" apparently date back to the sixteenth century.

"Cinderella," "Jack the Giant Killer," "Blue Beard" and "Tom Thumb" appear in "Perrault's Tales," published in Paris in 1697.

"Humpty Dumpty" was a bold, bad baron who lived in the reign of King John and was tumbled from power. His history was put into riddle, to which the answer, as you all know, is an egg.

How a Rabbit Runs.

The position of the rabbit's feet in running is not understood except by old hunters. Young sportsmen are astonished when, upon examining their tracks the first time, they find, as they think, that they always ran backward. For the slight tracks of the forefeet are really situated behind the larger and more widely separated prints of the long hind ones.

As this animal springs the fore feet strike the surface near one another, while the hind feet are spread apart and brought to the ground some distance in advance, outside of them. As these strike, the fore feet, which have touched the surface but lightly, are lifted, and the spring is again made with the hind legs alone. In making the longest leaps the fore feet strike in a line, one behind the other, and at some distance in the rear of the hind ones, as if they had been again raised before the latter had touched the surface.

Conundrums.

Why is the letter T like an island? Because it is in the middle of water.

When were E and O the only vowels? In the days of Noah (O A), when U and I were not born.

What is the difference between the Prince of Wales and the water in a fountain? The prince is heir to the throne, the other is thrown to the air.

Which is more valuable, a five dollar gold piece or a five dollar bill? The five dollar bill, of course, because when you put it in your pocketbook you double it and when you take it out you see it in creases.

What is the worst time to catch a train? At 12:50, as it is 10 to 1 if you catch it.

Fox and Geese.

This game is usually played in the north, where trails in the snow establish the bounds. But it may also be played without snow by marking paths with lime, as for tennis. Lay out two concentric circles with paths radiating from a "nest" in the center of the inner circle. Select two persons to act as foxes, and let the others be geese. The foxes try to catch the geese by touching them at any point on the paths, but the geese are safe when in the nest. Both fox and geese must remain in the paths.—Country Gentleman.

I WAS RUN DOWN, NERVOUS AND WEAK

Cause? Chronic Cough—A Friend Advised Me to Take Vinol—I Did—It Made Me Well and Strong.

Jennings, La.—"I was run-down, nervous, weak, dizzy, and tired all the time as a result of a chronic cough which kept me awake nights for months. I have four in my family, and I was not able to do my daily housework. All the different medicines I had taken failed to do me any good until a friend told me about Vinol. I took it and within a month I felt so well and strong I could do my own housework. I would advise all weak women to take Vinol."—Mrs. A. FENYON, Jennings, La.

Why will women in this vicinity continue to drag along day in and day out, all run-down, pale, thin, nervous, weak and all tired out when we are continually publishing letters from hundreds of reliable women which prove how Vinol overcomes such conditions and creates strength.

We ask every weak, nervous, run-down man or woman to come to our store and get a bottle of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic without oil, and if it fails to help you, we will return your money.

Who Stole The Jewels?

By EUNICE BLAKE

There was trouble in the Follansbee family. A young woman had been introduced to teach the younger children, and Ned Follansbee, the eldest son, had fallen in love with her. But this was only a part of the difficulty. Certain jewels belonging to Mrs. Follansbee were missing. They had not all disappeared at once, but one at a time. This indicated that they were being taken by some one within the house.

Mr. Follansbee had a talk with his son Ned about the matter and accused Miss Winters, the governess. Ned indignantly denied the charge on behalf of the girl. He did not make a scene, for he realized that since Miss Winters was suspected she must be exculpated. After the first hot words between father and son it was agreed between them that neither should say anything about her being suspected.

This conversation occurred after a valuable bracelet had been missed from a safe built into the wall for the storage of silver plate and jewels. The only persons in the house who had access to the key of the safe were Mr. and Mrs. Follansbee. Mr. Follansbee was a nervous man and occupied a sleeping room by himself. When the jewels began to disappear he was keeping the key and suspected that some one had stolen it from his room when he was asleep, for he put it under his pillow with his watch every night when he went to bed.

It was agreed between the father and son that they should watch alternate nights for awhile with a view to solving the mystery; but, finding this more wearisome than dividing the night between them, they changed to the latter plan. Mr. Follansbee watched from bedtime till 2 in the morning and Ned from 2 till daylight.

Meanwhile they were both very careful to conceal their vigils from the rest of the family, especially Miss Winters. Ned had perfect confidence in her innocence and had no difficulty in treating her as he had always done. As for Mr. Follansbee, he saw very little of her, and there seemed to be no occasion for his betraying his suspicions.

There were several servants in the house—a cook, a housemaid and a chauffeur. Ned suspected the housemaid, she having access to every part of the house at all times. He had every confidence that by careful watching she would turn out to be the thief. The only puzzling feature to him was how she opened the safe. But he accounted for this on the supposition that she had taken away a wax impression of the lock and had a pal who had made a key from it. For the safe was a very old fashioned affair put in before the day of combination locks.

The watchfulness of the two Follansbees was not attended with success. One night the maid was discovered by Follansbee Junior in the kitchen at 3 o'clock in the morning. Ned was sure this gave him a clue. He kept in the dark and watched. The girl lit the gas range and put on some water to be heated, then, dipping a cloth in it, held the cloth to her cheek. Evidently it was a case of toothache. Not long after this the maid returned to her room.

The incident put a damper on Ned's suspicions of her, and a pang shot through him as he remembered that Miss Winters was the only other person, besides the members of the family, that had the run of the house. The watch had continued ten days, and the mystery was still unsolved. No jewels had disappeared during this interval. Mr. Follansbee was sure that Miss Winters was the thief because she was a very bright woman and there was no one else about who had the ability to steal the jewels and escape detection. Ned was despondent because he could not prove Miss Winters to be innocent. The father gave up his watch, while Ned concluded to keep up his for a few days longer between bedtime and daylight, which, since it was spring, came early.

One night between 12 and 1 o'clock he was sitting in the library, where he could hear a sound in any part of the house. His vigils had deprived him of a good deal of sleep, and he was unable to keep awake. There was no light in the room. As he was dropping off into a doze he felt a hand grasp his arm. Opening his eyes, by the light of a street lamp he saw Miss Winters.

"Come quick," she said, and without waiting for a reply led him to the hall on the second story, where she stopped and listened.

Ned heard some one moving at the other end of the hall. Presently there was a sound like something striking metal. Then Miss Winters, still holding his wrist, led him toward the other end of the hall. He could see nothing, but heard the safe door open. Miss Winters reached above her head and turned on an electric light.

There before the open safe stood Mr. Follansbee.

Miss Winters, feeling a shiver run through the arm she held, whispered: "He's asleep!"

The mystery was solved and by the person who was suspected of being the thief. Miss Winters had seen through the veil that her lover had thrown over himself and had done more watching, or at least to better effect, than the Follansbees. She had discovered Mr. Follansbee walking in his sleep and suspected him, but said nothing, preferring to clutch her statement by proof.

HEAT OF OUR SUN

To Measure It Is a Perplexing Problem For Science.

NEWTON ONCE TRIED TO DO IT

He Figured It at the Amazing Intensity of 1,669,300 Degrees Centigrade, While the Latest Estimates Place It at About 6,500 Degrees.

How hot is the sun? The question has been answered in many different ways, and it is by no means certain that we have yet arrived at an even approximately accurate answer. Yet it would seem that, as the sun is the only source of the earth's heat, and as we know the exact distance of the sun, it ought to be easy to calculate his heat. That is what Newton thought in 1680 when, finding that a thermometer registered 65 degrees C. in the sun and 23.44 degrees C. in the shade, and applying the law of the square of distance he announced that the sun's heat was 1,669,300 degrees C.

In 1837 Sir John Herschel and Pouillet devised special instruments for measuring the solar heat, but at the very beginning disagreed on a fundamental question. Pouillet wanted to estimate that the earth's atmosphere cut off half the sun's heat; Herschel insisted that it cut off only one-third. Herschel reached the conclusion that the sun's heat was two calories per square centimeter per minute. Pouillet calculated it at 1.7633 calories per square centimeter per minute. This means that the sun's rays falling vertically upon each square centimeter of the earth's surface would be sufficiently powerful, if it were not for their absorption by our atmosphere, to raise 1.7633 grams of water one degree C. per minute. This number is what astronomers call the solar constant.

Pouillet's figures, 1.7, were generally accepted until recently. Forbes by experiments at the top and at the base of a high mountain calculated that 2.85 was the correct number. Vielle made it 2.54, and Crova asserted that it was certainly superior to two calories per square centimeter per minute.

The American Langley invented the bolometer, by means of which he measured the intensity of each ray by the length of its wave before entering our atmosphere. Thus he proved that the rays of shortest length are those that are most absorbed. It is as if we placed two red glasses between ourselves and the sun, one representing the sun's atmosphere and one representing our own.

The Abbe Moreux, director of the Bourges observatory, declares in an article in Cosmos that if these two atmospheres were eliminated and we could see the sun as he really is he would appear to be a brilliant greenish blue.

Langley's calculations placed the solar constant at about three. He proved that scarcely 60 per cent of the sun's rays penetrated to sea level.

Other observers obtained other figures, and at the beginning of this century the tendency was to return to those announced by Herschel and Pouillet.

It is certain that the earth intercepts only about one two-billionth part of the actual heat of the sun, but if we adopt Langley's figure, 3, we find that the fraction of heat received would be sufficient to melt annually a layer of ice 222.75 feet thick at the equator of the earth. The average power received from the sun over the entire earth is equal to 154,464,000 kilowatts a year, or one continuous horsepower for every 1.72 square meters.

The greater part of this heat is used up in keeping the earth warm; but, according to Helmholtz, about a thousandth part of it is absorbed by animals and vegetables and becomes an abundant reserve of energy for the human race.

If we accept the more recent figures, which are the result of the calculations of Messrs. Abbott, Fowle and Aldrich at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington and call the solar constant two calories per square centimeter per minute, the results are scarcely less striking.

If the total heat could be applied to a block of ice at 0 degrees C. as thick as the earth—8,000 miles—this would be entirely melted in a quarter of an hour. All the water thus obtained would be turned to steam at 100 degrees C. 117 minutes later, the whole operation from ice to steam having taken only two hours and twelve minutes.

The most recent estimate of the temperature of the sun's surface is between 6,000 and 7,000 degrees C.—New York World.

Limited Dissipation.

A small henpecked little man was about to take an examination for life insurance.

"You don't dissipate, do you?" asked the physician as he made ready for tests. "Not a fast liver or anything of that sort?"

The little man hesitated a moment, looked a bit frightened, then replied in a small, piping voice, "I sometimes chew a little gum."—Collier's Weekly.

Over the Limit.

Husband (reading from his paper)—Here, they say, is a comet coming toward the earth, travelling at the rate of a million miles a minute. Wife (awaking from a doze)—Why don't they enforce the speed laws better?—Exchange.

Drink Water for Health.

Persons who wish to keep "up to the mark" should drink water systematically regardless of the feeling of actual thirst—before breakfast, between meals, and at bedtime.
